Dear Commissioners:

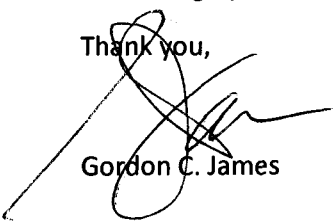

In business we look for opportunities to expand our market share, build our brand, and produce greater revenues. This is how we stay open, make payroll, and keep people employed. It is what makes economies grow and provides quality of life to our citizens. It also provides a tax-base and fills the coffers of the state through corporate taxes and wage earners who then fund the necessary actions of the state and nation. It is Free Enterprise at its finest.

Now Arizona Public Service has a concept for solar power through leasing rooftops of homeowners. No rebates, no tax incentives, no phony promises of zero electric costs. Just a clear cut business proposition; we lease your rooftop at a credit you have accepted as fair and we keep the power generated to feed the grid.

Some question the timing, others the actual cost, and others the need. The bottom line is the bottom line. Arizona Public Service is a private company, and for my money a very good one. This is a very clear cut example of providing jobs, helping the economy, positively affecting the environment, and maybe a profit along the way. A profit that then goes right back into the economy.

I encourage you to approve this project.

Thank you,

Gordon C. JamesArizona Corporation Commission
